JBidwatcher 2.5

A Java-based application allowing you to monitor auctions you're not part of, submit bids, snipe (bid at the last moment), and otherwise track your auction-site experience. It includes adult-auction management, MANY currencies (pound, dollar (US, Canada, Australian, and New Taiwanese) and euro, presently), drag-and-drop of auction URLs, an original, unique and powerful 'multisniping' feature, a relatively nice UI, and is known to work cleanly under Linux, Windows, Solaris, and MacOSX from the same binary.

ZoomIt v4.5

Introduction

ZoomIt is a screen zoom and annotation tool for technical presentations that include application demonstrations. ZoomIt runs unobtrusively in the tray and activates with customizable hotkeys to zoom in on an area of the screen, move around while zoomed, and draw on the zoomed image. I wrote ZoomIt to fit my specific needs and use it in all my presentations.

ZoomIt works on all versions of Windows and you can use pen input for ZoomIt drawing on tablet PCs.

Есть такая очень полезная функциональность, для ноутбуков с тачскринами (даже с индуктивными, только для Pen), впрочем, часто используется и с отдельными планшетами, и даже неплохо с обычной мышью или тачпадом → рисование поверх экрана.

дичайше увеличивает эффективность презентаций, вебинаров и т.п., хреновыми слайдами или живой демонстраций + даже очень кривое х обычной живой демонстрации софта, сделать суперудачное цию, вебинар и т.п.

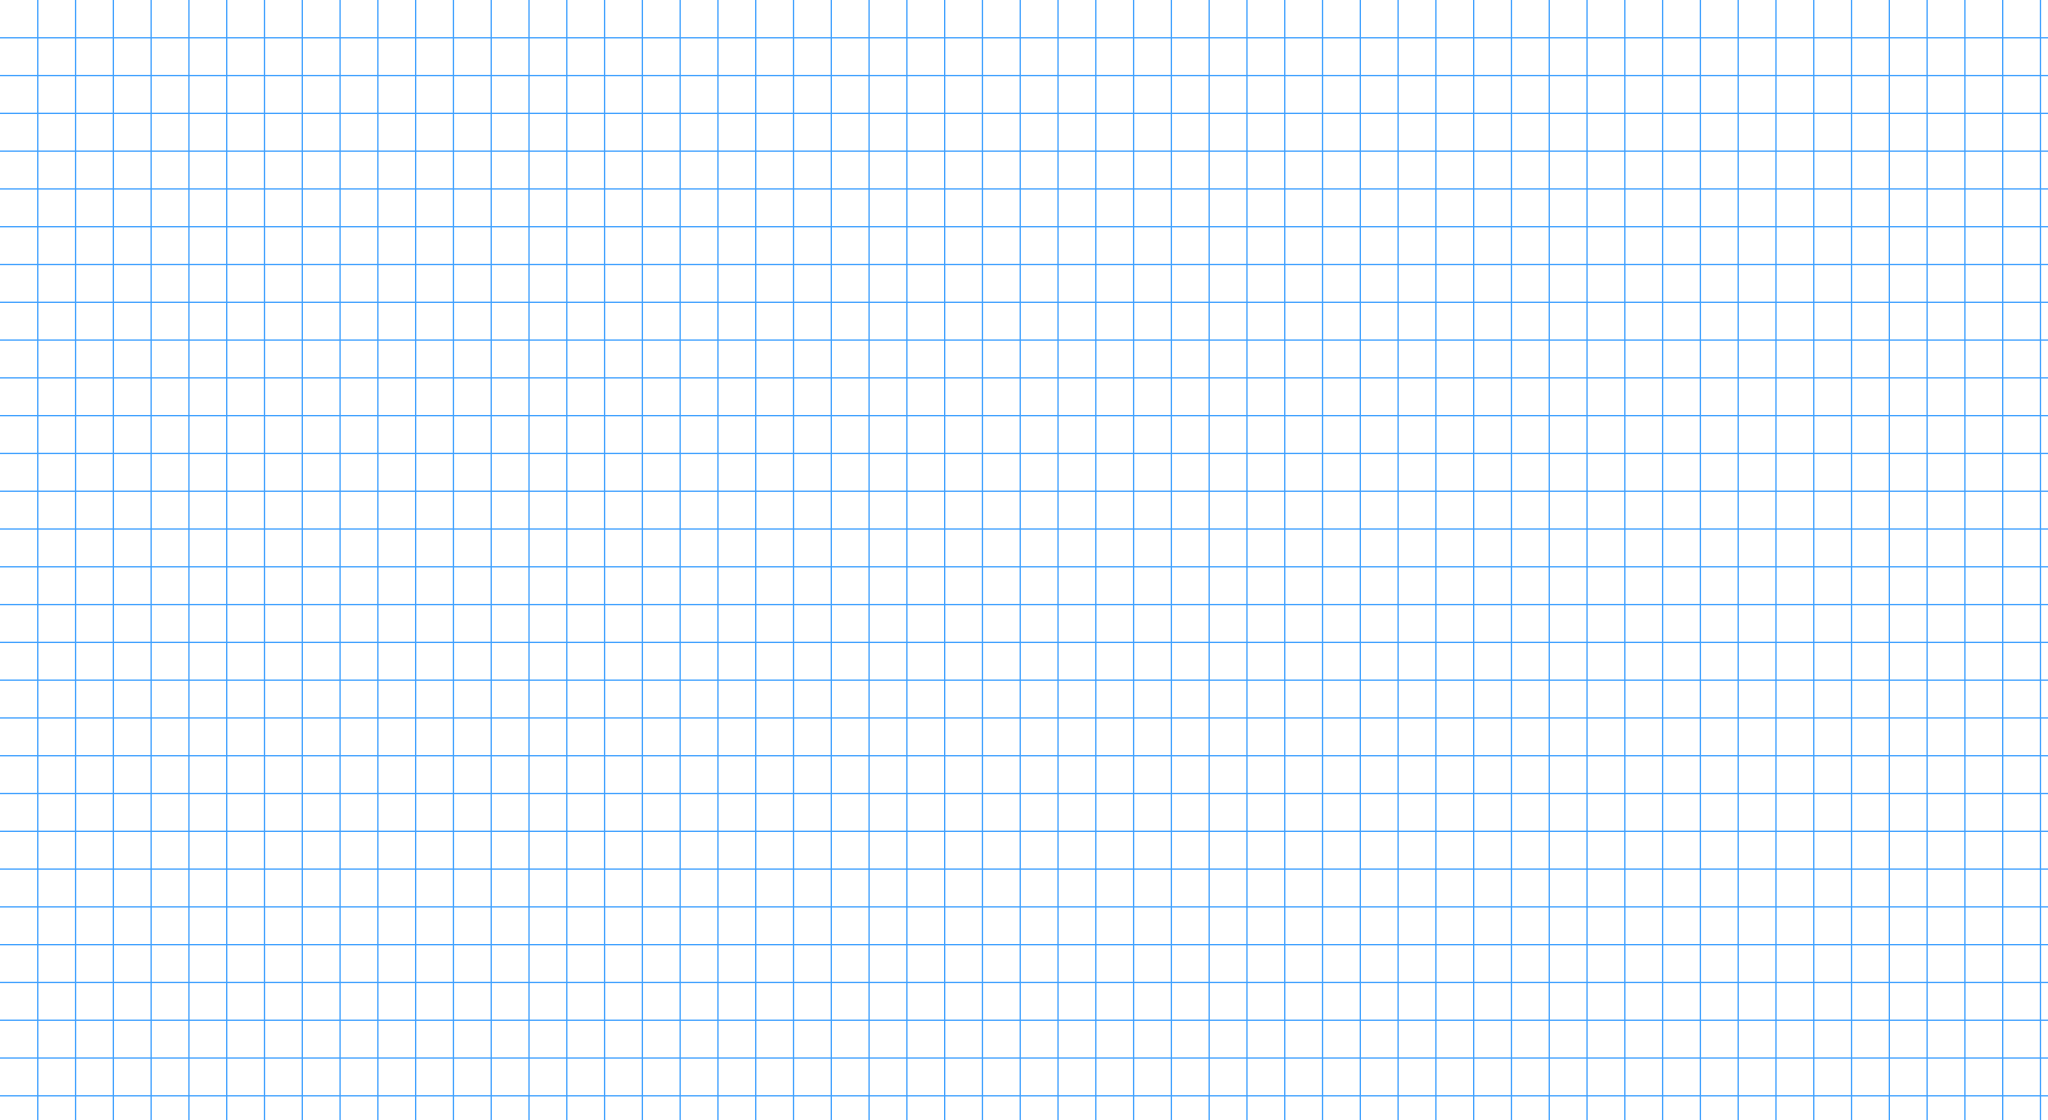

не нужно «широкому пользователю», но

→ Ballroom vs. Conference Room Style Presentations

Two years ago I blogged on the importance of presentation idiom, and on the two main presentation idioms, Ballroom style and Conference room style. I think the difference between the two styles is critically important and not well understood, so I am repeating that post here, with some minor edits.

Each presentation situation calls for a particular presentation idiom—a form of expression and a set of design principles. Contrary to the popular complaint, the problem with PowerPoint™ is not that it forces you to design a presentation in a particular way. On the contrary, it doesn't. And that's the problem: PowerPoint allows you to mix design elements from different idioms, which, I believe, accounts for much of the ugliness and ineffectiveness of most presentations.

There are two fundamental presentation idioms, which I call Ballroom style and Conference Room style. The Ballroom style presentation is what most typical PowerPoint presentations are trying to be: colorful, vibrant, attention-grabbing, and (sometimes) noisy. They typically take place in a large, dark room such as a hotel ballroom.

The Conference Room style presentation is much more understated: less use of color, more details
